Union Station Crowded With Diplomats and American Scientists to Say Farewell.

FIRST STOP AT BALTIMORE

Soard of Trade Gives Luncheon and Party Later Entertained at Johns Hopkins.

The Latin-American delegates to the Pan-American Scientific Congress, commonly called "the mobilized brains of the three Americas," started this morning on a week's tour of the Eastern cities and universities.

The Union Station was crowded with diplomats and United States savants. ermy and navy officers, and others who had assembled to see the distinguished party off. A special train of seven cars and extra baggage coaches had been provided for the delegates, who are being personally conducted by Director John Barrett, of the Pan-American Union, and Madden Summers, Urited States consul general at San Paulo.

The assemblage at the Union Station just before the train departed resembled a session of the congress in the distinguished character of the men com-posing it. Fractically the entire diplomatic contingent from South and Central America was on hand, headed by Ambassadors Suarez, of Chile, and Da Gama, of Brazil. The United States official delegation was on hand to a official delegation was on hand to a man, with Assistant Secretary of State William Phillips, Judge George Gray, of Delaware; James Browne Scott, of the Carnegie Endowment for Interna-tional Peace, and Commissioner of Edu-cation P. P. Claxton at their head.

NEW HAVEN RETRIAL BEGIN WEEK'S TOUR OF CAPITAL SOCIETY NOT DUE FOR WEEKS TRADING IS ACTIVE and Unacquitted Associates Before Second Jury.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.-Arrangements for the retrial of William Rockefeller and four other New Haven directors, or whose guilt on conspiracy charges the Federal jury disagreed, were begun by the district attorney's office here today. With the tons of testimony to be briefed and arranged to bring the Government's heaviest forces to bear on the five defendants to be retried, however, it is believed weeks will elapse before another jury is drawn to determine whether they conspired to monopolize whether they conspired to monopolize New England transportation.

Lewis Cass Ledyard, former personal counsel for J. Pierpont Morgan, and one of the defendants who will be retried gave physical evidence that the jury's report hit him hard. William Rockefeller was not in court, and the other three defendants on whose guilt the jury disagreed, wore perfect "poker" faces throughout the final jury hearing and had "nothing to say."

These three are: Former Connecticut Republican National Committeeman Charles F. Brooker, of Ansonia, Conn., a bross manufacturer: Charles M. Pratt, whose father was a hig man in Standard Oil, and former New Haven lines counsel Edward Robbins.
